SRI LANKA FREE OF BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION

Where the hand can never earn,
Wealth gets what they yearn.
Where the words can never gain,
Money quells their strain.

But, sometimes, when the initial fails,
Determination leaves trails.
When that determination comes down,
Diverse fields hold a crown.

Only when the droughts reach a peak,
Do showers give a creek.
So only when this shattering's at the top,
Shall corruption stop.

Then shall it give rise,
To a country much wise.
Then shall a country prevail,
With deception so frail.

Then shall the true stars shine,
Building a country almost divine.
Immortality shall be overridden,
Out shall come what was forbidden.
